JOHN RAGAN JOINS COUNCIL'S BOARD OF DIRECTORS Founding Member Accepts Leadership Role in Industry Organization

DENVILLE, NJ – John J. Ragan, P.E., P.P., President of The Entech Group, Inc., was elected Vice Chairman of the Carbon Management Council (CMC), a nonprofit association established in December 2007 that is dedicated to helping organizations develop solutions to manage their carbon emissions.

The CMC, located in Washington, D.C., came to fruition following persistent encouragement from Jeffrey, A. Serfass, a leader in the energy industry. Many carbon management products, analytical tools and management strategies have already been developed, but Mr. Serfass and individuals from eight leading companies recognized the need for more widely shared knowledge about their utility, appropriateness and credibility.

The goal of the CMC is to provide credible, unbiased information on carbon management principles and practices to the public. The CMC aims to be the first stop for decision makers and business leaders to not just mitigate risk, but also to discover the opportunities for their businesses to innovate, profit and meet the challenges of climate change.
